Commander's Column

By Col. Terry Lawrence

It's hard to believe my Niagara experience is coming to a close. It's been a great honor serving beside each and every one of you, first as the 328th Airlift Squadron Director of Operations and then as the 914th Operations Group Commander. As I move to Charleston, SC to be the 315th Operations Group Commander and on to fly C-17s, I realize I am a Niagara Frontiersman in spirit. Who I have become, because of Niagara, will weigh heavily in my decisions and benefit both myself and the Air Force throughout the remainder of my career...12 more years?

I can say that I've rolled with the deployments, inspections, exercises and seemingly endless training alongside the Air Force's best. I have learned much from the newest Airmen to Wing Commanders. I believe in world class operations first and foremost...and we should always strive to deliver that to the nation. Niagara has gone the extra mile during my 6 years and 8 months and obviously well before that. Just in my short tenure here, I've been blessed to lead a group that received numerous accolades from the command, Air Force and community. Combined effort garnered 3 Air Force Outstanding Unit Awards (1 for valor in combat) and 1 Meritorious Unit Award (for combat service). Our personnel received individual Air Force level recognition that was well deserved. "Best in the Air Force" has become a commonly used descriptor of our people here at Niagara, and should not be taken lightly. All should continue the work and strive to be the best in their functional areas. I am sure I will see many more Niagara names "in lights."

I feel the men and women of the 914th have demonstrated a "call to duty" exceeding that of nearly all other volunteer units, if not all. From expeditionary to individual deployments, this wing's record will be hard to beat. I debriefed Airmen upon return home and was amazed at the contributions made outside of everyone's primary AFSC. You are combat Airmen building a proud heritage that future generations can and will emulate. I have learned patience in dealing with processes that seem like they're always being built as we're pushing out the door. You, the work force somehow manage to always get it right. Leadership is proud of your cooperative spirit...and undoubtedly will continue to put it to the test as we defend our nation.

I would like to thank everyone for all the little things you've done that you feel went unnoticed...they didn't; they're rolled up into the Niagara spirit and are a part of who we are. You should look back and think "that was my contribution to the whole." Whenever the chips were down here, people rolled up their sleeves, slicked back their hair (mostly within regs for a reserve base) and got the work done. Of that you can be proud. Besides fighting the nations fight with deployments, you saved the base from closure and pulled off an incredible ORI. To this day I can still see the awe shared by inspectors over our ability to launch during Initial Response despite the most horrendous weather conditions imaginable. You responded with mutual support for the community and nation...and were always leaning forward in your harness to contribute to the mission, for the community, in support of natural disasters, in response to hurricanes, and supporting Airmen in need...whatever the case.

You are continuing to build a world class ARC association that has the attention of the entire Air Force. Efficiency of operations and teamwork should continue to be a focus...don't let individual barriers or infrastructure get in your way. Work with supervisors to elevate your concerns and seek continuous improvement. We can only make the best decisions with the information we have at the time...as events unfold, lead and adapt to change.

Western New York feels a sense of security from your presence; remember that and always carry yourself proudly on or off duty as Citizen Airmen.

We led the way for the Command when we delivered our Warrior Briefing on Unrivaled Wingmen to the Pentagon...it was based on who you are and what you've done. I have one last vision to articulate for the base...it has always been my belief that we are in need of some artwork at the front entrance to the installation...press the powers to be to bring it to you. I see a statue of sorts, similar to our association poster of a Frontiersman and Minuteman standing side by side. Put it on a pedestal...and get the attention of everyone passing by and through our gate.

With all that being said, keep up the great work as you once again deploy out in mass for our AEF bucket. I will always remember and cherish the "Summer Bash," the "Combat Dining In" with water gun fights, the Combat Skills Challenge/Mini-rodeo, the "Thunder Of Niagara" airshows and most importantly, You! Respectfully Yours, Terry.

Oh yeah, and please don't tell anyone in Charleston that you call me "Snowbank" because I got caught in a snow drift and had to have Command Post personnel push me out during my first UTA back in January 2003...LOL.

Base welcomes new SARC

Hello, my name is Brande Newsome and I am the 914th Airlift Wing Sexual Assault Response Coordinator (SARC). I am a social worker by trade and a traditional reservist attached to the Mental Health section of the 914th Aeromedical Staging Squadron.

In my full time role I will provide oversight to the Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) program, supervise a pool of volunteer victim advocates, chair the base Integrated Delivery System (IDS) team, assist in providing suicide prevention and substance abuse prevention training and work with community partners on domestic violence and sexual assault outreach initiatives.

I will maintain an open door, assess and referral presence. Please think of me as a social work resource for the base.

I can be reached at (716) 236-2576 or via the 24 hour, 7 days per week SAPR Hotline at (716) 989-9443. During the week I am located in building 800, room 225.

Please congratulate Senior Master Sgt. Scott Scharlau as our next Command Chief Master Sergeant. Chief Master Sgt. (Sel) Scharlau brings a wealth of education, experience and talent to the Command Chief position and will replace Chief Master Sgt. Steve Larwood as he moves to 22nd Air Force in September.

Command and wing recruiters shatter enlistment goal

Air Force Reserve Command recruiters recorded their 8,800th enlistment of the year Aug. 3, breaking the record for reaching their annual recruiting goal the fastest - two months before deadline.

The 400 men and women who recruit nationwide for the Air Force Reserve had until Sept. 30, the end of the fiscal year, to make the goal. Their achievement marks the ninth straight year the command recruiters have reached their annual target number for enlistments.

Lt. Gen. Charles E. Stenner Jr., AFRC commander, praised the recruiters and spoke with glowing enthusiasm about their accomplishment.

"Our Air Force Reserve recruiters are fantastic," he said. "They have no peer, and they continue to impress me time and time again."

"Not only have they reached their target two months ahead of schedule, but this is the earliest they've ever reached their goal," the general said. "They're number one of all of the Department of Defense's recruiting services for the ninth year in a row. My heartiest congratulations to all of them on a job, once again, extremely well done."

The 914th Airlift Wing recruiting team also set a record for the base with a total of 164 enlistments, shattering the old record of 145 set in 2002.

Senior Master Sgt. Pasquale Muoio, 914th Airlift Wing senior recruiter, praised the efforts of the entire wing in making this record breaking year possible.

"We would not have been able to accomplish such an endeavor without the wing's support," said Muoio. "From leadership identifying overages and vacancies, to the military personnel flight, finance and the Aeromedical Staging Squadron assisting in processing the applicants."

"Even more important was the efforts of each wing member sharing their Air Force Reserve experiences to friends and family members," added Muoio. "The Get 1 Now program was a huge success accounting for 56 of the current 164 accessions, an amazing 34%!"

To make matters more challenging, the command goal was 10 percent higher this year than last.

"I'm extremely proud of the efforts put forth by the recruiting team," said Col. Joe Wilburn, commander of the Air Force Reserve's recruiting force. "This achievement is a direct reflection of the hard work and talent they put towards the task at hand."

Arlington Cemetery is full of indispensable people

By Senior Airman Jerome Boykin

"Arlington Cemetery is full of indispensable people," said Lt. Col. (Ret) Leo O. Gray taking the Airmen by surprise. This young Airman had the mind-set that without him people may drop the ball and that the success of his base was contingent upon his participation. This mind set has stifled his growth in other areas of life and was on the way to stifling his progression in the Air Force as well. This was a common misperception of many youth and young Airmen prior to attending the Tuskegee Airmen's Conference. They believe that their parents, their bosses and others need them to stall their progression for the good of the whole.

Many times people hold themselves back, thinking that without them, projects will fail. Yet, in contrast, other people are willing and eager to move into their slots. Taking things to the next level and carrying on legacies is the point of Lt. Col. Gray's statement, and the legacy the Tuskegee Airmen's Conference promotes is the same.

The conference included panels upon panels of indispensable people. There was one panel of ladies, ranking from Command Chief Master Sergeants to Brigadier General. There was a panel of power made up of a former Assistant Secretary of the Air Force, a Major General, a Colonel and a Captain. Everywhere one turned they witnessed rank upon rank upon rank. In other cases an Airman may have been intimidated, but at the Tuskegee Airmen's Inc. Conference, this was an opportunity of a lifetime.

The conference was held at the Palace Station Hotel in Las Vegas, NV. According to the airport shuttle driver, the hotel was where all the locals went to satisfy their gambling appetites. The hotel came equipped with its own buffet, casino, and ballrooms where we spent most of our time. The ballrooms were divided into three sections, with each hosting a program. One was able to attend a panel, training, or a special activity. However, more than anything else, the event was focused and geared toward youth.

On Saturday, August 8, 2009, the day for youth, youth from all over America gathered in Las Vegas, NV for a trip to Nellis Air Force Base. The trip was one part of a much larger initiative to mentor youth. Volunteers showed the students many airplanes including an F-22, F-16 and an original Tuskegee Airman's Red Tail.

Afterwards, everyone gathered at the hotel for a youth luncheon. Youth were given the opportunity to meet and serve the original Tuskegee Airmen. The conference also brought in Commanders, Generals, and record breakers to meet with the youth.

The Anyedike sisters were the guests of honor. These sisters hold world records for the longest flight and the most planes landed in one day by young African American females. After they spoke, members of the audience were star struck. They seemed to finally realize that they can fulfill their dream at any age, that it doesn't take a lifetime and that neglecting dreams is never an option.

Multiple flu vaccinations to begin for wing

By Carrie Knoell

The flu season is back, it's time to get your annual flu vaccination at the 914th ASTS. The annual flu is for prevention of the seasonal flu. Both flu mist and the shot prevent the same 3 strands of the flu. Remember- if you get vaccinated through your civilian doctor, the immunizations clinic needs documentation.

The H1N1 vaccination is in the works with the CDC, their hoping to accomplish by the fall. This vaccination will be a 2 shot series; meaning most individuals will be receiving a total of 3 flu vaccines this year.

- Remember Prevention is the Key!
 - Cover your cough
 - Wash hands
 - If you have a fever, stay home for at least 24 hours after the fever has ended
 - Get Vaccinated

The Niagara Falls Air Reserve Station hosted two U.S. Air Force F-22's on September 5th. The Air Force's newest fighter jets, from Langley Air Force Base, VA stayed at Niagara due to the station's 24 hour security before flying out and participating in the Canadian National Exposition Air Show in Toronto, Canada.

In Charge?

By Chaplain (Capt.) James Bastian

There was a TV show titled "Charles-in-Charge" in the mid-80's. The title was and is intriguing to me, especially with the retirement of Chaplain Weldon Thomas (RIP), not rest-in-peace, but retire-in-peace. He was of the rank and experience to have the title Wing Chaplain. I hope to get the schooling and experience to one day be your Wing Chaplain, until then, I am a CiC (gotta love the acronymns), that is Chaplain-in-Charge.

I recently called our religious support team the "God Squadron." I know God is in charge, but God doesn't have a social security number, isn't up to date on shots and immunizations and has failed to do the fitness test. I guess I'm next in line. With the vacancy of the Wing Chaplain, I have decided to make a few changes to try to continue the mission. I must share that we are recruiting and looking for another chaplain. If you know someone, please call me. Until that happens, we will continue to have the two Catholic Masses (Sat. 1600 and Sun. 1100), and we have decided to have a 10am Sunday morning Protestant Service on the UTA weekends. So please join us as your training allows.

I am also happy to share that "In association," I have been meeting with our 107th ANG counter-parts. They have a Wing Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Fr. Jim Jaeger, and two Protestant Chaplains (Maj.) Jackie Kraft and Chaplain (1st Lt.) Keith Manry. They have generously offered their services and support for counseling and help in case of emergencies. It is good to work together.

Finally, we are in the holiest period of the Islamic Year, Ramadan (August 22 - September 20). During this holy month, Muslims are required to abstain from food, drink - including water - starting 1.5 hours before sunrise until sunset. Please be sensitive to their customs and duty.

God's peace be with you.

Muslim Holy Month of Ramadan: August 22 - September 20

This is the holiest period of the Islamic Year. During the holy month (Aug. 22 - Sep. 20), Muslims are required to abstain from food, drink - including water - starting from 1.5 hours before sunrise until sunset.

Smoking is also prohibited during these hours. On especially hot days, Muslims may seek permission to reduce or be excused from physical training (including PT Assessments) or limit their time outdoors, duty permitting.

When it comes to faith, some take it very literal or conservatively, some more liberally. So do not judge someone on their particular practice, but be aware some may have these tenets.

If you have any questions, or need to refer an Airman to the Chapel, please call ext. 2381.

Thanks for your interfaith sensitivity.
